"NO DARKNESS SO DEEP THAT SUNLIGHT OF FAITH CANNOT FIND ITS HEART"

That Was Essence of Message of Miss Helen Keller Here Last Night—Mrs. Macy Told of Many Struggles to Break Down the Barriers of Deafness and Blindness

"There is no darkness so deep that the sunlight of faith cannot find its heart." That closing sentence of Miss Helen Keller was the essence of probably the most remarkable lecture message which Maryville has ever heard.

It was greeted with a silence almost of sadness or pity until it was seen that the famous blind, deaf and dumb woman was through, when a wave of admiration swept over the audience for one who could achieve speech out of the blankness of no sight nor hearing.

Then it was that the most interesting part of the evening at the First Methodist church was given to many in the request for all to ask questions who cared to. Mrs. Macy, the teacher, started by asking her pupil if she was a suffragist.

"Yes," she replied. "Women should be allowed to vote, but they would not all use the privilege wisely, for God made some of them fools."

"Do you believe in preparedness."

"No, I do not. For ultimately it means war. Look at Germany. She was prepared to the teeth. I should be willing if the kings and kaisers did the fighting instead of the lawyers and other common people. It means misery. My uncensored blind magazines tell me that all the peoples of Europe are in distress."

"Do you know anything of music?"

"Yes, I feel it with my body. Not the melody so much as the rhythm, as in a piece like Yankee Doodle."

"Do you believe in prohibition?"

"Yes, I do."

"Is it an effort to talk?"

"No, I am a true daughter of Eve. I like to talk like any other woman."

When asked if she talked other languages than English, her teacher replied that she did, and read them readily also. When a person asked if she had tried to sing, Miss Keller replied:

"Not yet."

She answered a question as to whether she had any conception of color by saying that she felt red when angry and blue when depressed.

Most of the answers were received with enthusiasm, particularly the three concerning equal suffrage prohibition and preparedness. Although very different from the usual human voice, Miss Keller could be understood by anyone who listened carefully.

How She Learned to Talk.

This was accomplished by her pronounced articulation and enunciation. The difference was in the tones and resonance of the voice as in that of any deaf person. The difference is that Miss Keller has never heard a sound of a word. She learned by a purely mechanical process, feeling the throat, tongue and lips of her teacher word by word and then imitating the motion of the speaking organs.

Before Miss Keller began her lecture upon "Happiness," Mrs. Macy and Miss Keller demonstrated with several simple words just how this was done. She said that she could tell about how many were there because of the air being crowded with life and vibrations.

In order to accustom her hearers to her voice, Miss Keller repeated the Twenty-third Psalm. Then she began her wonderful lecture which is given in part in the following:

"I am glad to come to you tonight in order to tell you that, though I am blind and deaf, I am not shut out from the greatness and beauty of life, from the joy of living. There is daylight in my soul.

"And it is love which has wrought this miracle. It is what others have done for me that makes it possible for me to know of life, its wonderful beauty, although shut out from the usual paths of enjoyment.

"My misfortune does not make me sad. Sometimes it does make me rebellious because I am so dependent upon others, but I have learned that happiness or sorrow depends upon ourselves alone. Faith in God and unselfish efforts for others will bring happiness to anyone no matter how afflicted.

"Good Stronger Than Evil."

"No matter how small your opportunities, do something for the betterment of mankind. In spite of selfishness brutal wars and a seeming to

BRAKEMAN KILLED

HEAD ALMOST TORN OFF

John Gallagher of Council Bluffs Was Uncoupling Box Car and Fell on the Rails When Struck.

John Gallagher, a brakeman on the Wabash, was instantly killed at Elmo yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock, when a sleet covered railroad rail slipped from a load of rails, almost tearing his head off.

He was uncoupling the flat car from a box car and when the train started with a lurch, one of the rails was displaced and jammed into a car, mashing his head against the car. His body fell beneath the wheels and his legs were cut off, one above the ankle and the other above the knee. There was nothing at either end of the flat car to keep the rails from sliding.

Dr. Will Wallis, the coroner, was called, but the undertaker had taken charge of the body, so the inquest was not held yesterday and will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock here.

Mr. Gallagher was 26 years old and unmarried. He is survived by his parents, with whom he lived in Council Bluffs, Ia. His brother-in-law, Mr. Smith, arrived last night and will accompany the body to Council Bluffs, where the funeral services will be held.

At the coroner's inquest six witnesses were examined and the jury returned a verdict that the death of John Gallagher was purely accidental. The men on the jury were: Mike Humphrey, Tom McDonald, William Hughes, Joe Alexander, Louis Anderson and G. A. VanSteenbergh.

"TAKE OUT PROFIT"

WILSON MESSAGE TO CONGRESS ON WAR MUNITIONS.

RESENTMENT 'BACK HOME'

Nation Does Not Approve of Riches Through War, Says President Wilson.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Take the profit out of the manufacturing of war munitions and then let the manufacturers take the responsibility for the making of arms.

Although not couched in that language, this in effect was the message sent by President Wilson through influential leaders of the senate and house.

The unofficial message makes it plain that the sentiment "back home" is resentful over the uncontradicted assertions that this nation is growing rich through its traffic in war supplies and munitions.

ALLEN TO SPEAK TO ALL SUN. 3:30

MASS MEETING OPEN TO EVERYBODY AT FIRST METHODIST.

MEN'S MEETING AT COURT HOUSE 7:30

No Church Services in Evening, Ministers Decide—Demand Strong to Hear Kansan.

"Henry J. Allen is too big a man to bring to Maryville and then let the men only hear him."

That's just about what everyone in Maryville has been saying all this week about the meeting in the court house Sunday night. People out in the county, too, and their papers insisted that they wanted a chance to hear the famous Progressive Kansas editor.

So the pressure did the work. The opportunity will be given in a mass meeting open to everyone in the First Methodist church at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at which Mr. Allen will speak. A more general topic will be discussed in his talk against the liquor traffic and saloons. National prohibition will be mentioned also.

The Ministerial Alliance voted today to join in the union mass meeting Sunday afternoon and to call off all preaching services in the churches Sunday night so that all the men may hear Mr. Allen at the court house.

The men's meeting in the circuit court room, beginning at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night, will be address particularly to the issue to be settled next Thursday, when Maryville will vote on local option. Henry J. Allen has been a leader for prohibition in Kansas and for national prohibition, and his other broad sympathies and interests and his well known ability made him the ideal man to be brought to Maryville by the local option executive committee.

LENTEN SEASON MUCH LATER

Penitential Period Will Start March 14 and End April 23.

The Lenten season begins nearly a month later this year, as Easter Sunday falls much later in the spring in 1916 than in former years. April 23 is the date of Easter Sunday this year, consequently Lent begins on March 14. It began on February 17, last year.

Among all Christians the word "Lent" has come to mean the forty days of fast which precedes Easter. In some very ancient writings, religious investigators find that Lent at one time signified simply the springtime, though its generally accepted meaning as a time of fasting before Easter can be traced back to an early period in Christian history.

As early as the beginning of the fortieth century is found the Lenten time mentioned at the Council of Nice, A. D. 325, and the year 331, Athanasius, in his "Festal Letters," enjoined upon his people the observance of the forty days fast before Easter, or the Lenten fast, and a few years later, in 339, the same Athanasius, writing from Rome to Alexander in Egypt, said "The whole Christian world is observing the Lenten fast."

The reason for observing this period of fast was doubtless brought about by the example of the fasts of Moses, Elias and Christ. In the gospel of St. Matthew, fourth chapter and second verse, can be found this passage: "When He had fasted forty days and nights, afterward. He was hungry.' Thus before the minds of those who first adopted the Lenten fast there was the example of Christ fasting for a period of forty days.

The early Christians made the time of forty days' fast the period immediately preceding Easter, for the reason that this was the time of Christ's greatest suffering and they wished to do penance in memory of the trials of their Savior. All the humiliations and sorrows of Christ were merged into the last days of his early career, those days preceding Good Friday and Easter Sunday, therefore it was considered by Christians a most fitting time in which to observe the forty days fast during the same period in which Christ suffered. Doubtless the words of Christ himself, recorded in Matthew's gospel, chapter nine, fifteenth verse, may have had some influence in determining the time. It reads: "Can the children of the bridegroom mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them? But the days will come when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them and then they shall fast."

The observance of the Lenten period was much more strict among the early Christians than it is today. Modifications have become necessary owing to conditions that have arisen. Physical, economic and industrial conditions have necessitated several changes in the observance by the faithful of this age.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Crumb Brush For Sweeping Dining Table.

A new device for crumbing the dining table works on the principle of a parlor sweeper, which rolls over the surface and gathers up the particles by means of a revolving brush, the aforesaid accumulations being deposited in compartments which are located before and behind the broom.

The new device is quite small and inconspicuous, and after the principal courses of the meal have been served the maid propels the new crumber over such portions of the table where there may be crumbs, and a few passes of the new crumber leave the surface of the linen entirely clear of all particles.

Mexican Frijoles.

Soak three-quarters of a pint of Mexican brown beans or black or kidney beans overnight in a quart of cold water. In the morning drain, add fresh cold water to cover, with a quarter of a teaspoonful of soda, and bring to the boiling point. Add two tablespoonfuls of drippings, oil or butter, a cupful or more of tomatoes and four or five sweet peppers. Meantime fry three large onions in two tablespoonfuls of oil or butter till yellow, then mix with the other ingredients and stew or bake till tender. Serve with chili sauce.—Country Gentleman.

Baked Onions.

Wash well, but do not peel; put into dish with slightly salted water, boil an hour, replacing the water with more, boiling hot, as it evaporates. Pour off the water and lay the onions on a cloth to dry them well. Roll each onion in a piece of buttered or waxed paper, twisting it at the top to hold it in place, and bake in a slow oven for one hour, or until tender. Then peel the onions, place in a deep baking dish and brown for about fifteen minutes, basting well with butter. Take from oven, season with pepper and salt and pour melted butter over them.

Lyonnaise Potatoes.

The simplest form of lyonnaise potatoes is made with those already cooked, says the Country Gentleman. Slice about four cold boiled ones. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan; add two tablespoonfuls of minced onions; season with pepper and salt. Fry slowly ten minutes; then add the potatoes, still frying slowly and once in awhile turning with a knife till a golden brown. Season again, and when ready to serve add a tablespoonful of minced parsley.

Pork and Turnips.

Take a piece of fresh pork and cook it on the back of the stove, where it will not boil violently. Peel and cut the turnips in halves. Scald the turnips in boiling water and drain. Put into the kettle and cook slowly for several hours. When done there should be about a pint of liquid, and this can be thickened with flour and served over the turnips. Do not have too much water on them at any time, but rather steam the whole.

Delmonico Creamed Potatoes.

Scald one-half pint of light cream, add one-half tablespoonful of flour diluted with cold water to pour, and cook five minutes. Then add two cupfuls of potatoes, cut as for French fried potatoes, and parboil in boiling salted water six minutes or until nearly soft. Cook the potatoes in the sauce fifteen minutes; then add one-third cupful of cream cheese grated. Season with salt and paprika.

Cornmeal Pancakes.

Take two cupfuls of cornmeal and a teaspoonful of salt; pour over boiling water to make a batter, let stand to cool; then add the yolks of three eggs, beaten; enough flour to make of the proper consistency and one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Just before baking add the whites of the egg, beaten stiff.

Shirred Eggs With Rice.

Line a shallow buttered baking dish with hot boiled rice. Break six eggs and carefully drop them into the rice. Cover with one cup of white sauce into which one quarter cup of grated cheese has been added. Set baking dish in pan of hot water and cook in a slow oven until the whites of the eggs are jelly-like.

work in darkness, we should have a faith that good is stronger than evil; that darkness cannot withstand light.

"We should not avoid the hard things of life but face them and seek to understand and correct them. Don't go through life like spoiled children when there are so many wrong conditions that we could improve.

"Permanent happiness can only come from high purposes and desires; from new interests, a new outlook, and a faith unboundless. We should trust in the unlimited possibilities of goodness.

"Life, work and the happiness of achievement remain whether joys or grief come. We should seek more love, justice and devotion. We should live so that others will be freer and better. The most wonderful thing is the brotherhood of service. And it is my happiness to tell you of this because I have been saved by the love in the hearts of others."

At the close of her address, a bouquet of white roses were presented to Miss Keller. She manifested her delight readily and said, "roses." Several times during her lecture, she showed plainly that she "heard" applause by ceasing to speak when handclapping started and beginning at once as soon as it closed. The vibration is felt through her feet, she said.

Mrs. Macy, who spoke before Miss Keller, telling of her methods, was introduced by President Ira Richardson of the State Normal School. He said that one of the first impressions must be that we who have full possession of our faculties ought to do more.

"The paths of history," he said "are marked by those who have achieved. But tonight we are to hear one who has accomplished many things without two of the greatest faculties. It is a rare privilege. For the life of Miss Helen Keller stands and will stand as one of the greatest achievements of the world. And scarcely less note worthy is the work of the teacher of such a person."

Mrs. Macy Was Direct.

Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy went directly into her subject with an interest and freshness which surprised everyone. Beginning with her first sight, she told of the progress of the education until Miss Keller was made a Bachelor of Arts from Radcliffe and Havard university.

"When I went to Tuscombia, Ala.," she said, "Miss Keller was 6 years and eight months old. She was well grown and healthy; strong willed and went everywhere. At the age of 19 months an illness whose nature is unknown took away her sight and hearing but did not impair her brain.

"When she heard me coming, she ran to me and felt me all over. Finding a handbag she searched until she found a keyhole when she quit trying to open it. She was after candy. I had some in my trunk but how was I to tell her.

"Leading her to a trunk in the hall, I let her feel of the trunk then of me, then put her hand in her mouth. She understood in a flash. She already had an elaborate system of signs with her parents for expressing her desires.

"The striking thing about it is that a child will express itself. The human brain will have an outlet. It was reading of Laura Bridgeman of Boston, a deaf and blind girl who had learned to talk and read that led the parents of Helen Keller to send for a teacher.

"When my trunk came the next day, she helped unpack feeling and smelling of everything until she found the candy. When a doll was reached, before letting her have it, I spelled doll on the manual alphabet to her. She soon learned that to manipulate the fingers in that way meant the doll.

"In all essentials of teaching, she was taught by the same method os your daughter. For the fingers as truly make the words to the deaf and blind as the tongue does for the normal person. It is as truly a language. At first it was only repeated association that she understood.

Language Flashed Upon Her.

"At the end of twenty-five days, she knew eighteen nouns and three verbs. But on that memorable day, she suddenly became very excited. It had dawned upon her that everything had a name and symbols to stand for that name. Within a few hours, she had learned thirty new words.

"The captive was free; radiance took the place of baffled fear. Gradually she learned and at the end of four months she was writing little notes and reading stories. She soon learned however, that we communicated with each other by anther method and was always very desirous of learning that method."

Mrs. Macy said that she could fill a volume with the quaint sayings and actions of the child. She tried for many months to talk to the dog on its paw by using the manual alphabet. She said that a green persimmon pulled her together all over. She planted her doll as she had felt her mother planting seeds.

She was taken to Boston a few years later and placed in a school for the blind. At the end of her seventh lesson in articulation, when not ten years old, she said very distinctly to her teacher, "I am not dumb now.' Mrs. Macy said that her voice had continued to improve and she was doing so constantly.

Mrs. Macy sat with Miss Keller and told her on her fingers what was happening in the class room at Radcliffe. She was never present at any examination, however, and another teacher translated the papers.

Large Crowd Heard Speakers.

About eight hundred people were present. The main part of the auditorium was filled at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. Macy, Miss Keller and her secretary and manager, Miss Thompson, made up the party. Mrs. Keller was not present, as she is visiting another daughter, the only other child.

They were very tired last night, having been on the trains all day yesterday. Tonight they will be in Des Moines, Saturday in Omaha and Monday in Kansas City.

The women of the Twentieth Century club wish to express their appreciation to all the teachers, ministers, President Richardson, Superintendents Westbrook and Cooper, and all who have helped in the bringing of Miss Keller to Maryville.

The committees who had charge of the event for the club were: Advertising, Mrs. Charles Bellows, Mrs. E. G. Orear and Mrs. W. A. Rickenbrode; tickets, Mrs. Berney Harris, Mrs. H. A. Foster, Miss Lucie D. Davis and Mrs. C. C. Hellmers; finances, Mrs. C. C. Hellmers and Mrs. D. J. Thomas; ushers, Misses Grace Langan, Marie Reuillard, Mary Rooker, Virginia Robertson, Dora Carpenter and Ruth Montgomery.

Y. W. C. A. JUBILEE SOON

NORMAL GIRLS TO JOIN IN CELEBRATION.

Began in Boston in 1866 and Now Has 1,006 City and 721 College Organizations.

A jubilee to celebrate the fiftieth birthday of the national Y. W. C. A. organization will be held by all the local organizations in America during February. The association was started in Boston in 1866 to help the large number of homeless employed girls in the city. There are now 1,006 local organizations in the United States, of which 721 are in universities and colleges. The total membership is 373,234, of which 65,129 are students.

The first student organization was started in 1873 at the Normal University of Illinois. The movement also was spread to foreign countries, thirty now being reached. It is estimated that there are 785,000 members all over the world. The national headquarters of the United States are in New York. Mrs. Robert E. Speer is the president.

The purpose of the jubilee is to arouse interest in Y. W. C. A. work and to show what it stands for and what it is doing.

Local Plans to Be Made.

The Y. W. C. A. was organized in the second year after the State Normal school was started here, June 14, 1906, and at present has a membership of a few over 100. Plans are under way for a big jubilee celebration and membership campaign during the month of February.

Definite plans for the jubilee will be made next week. Five members have volunteered to assist with the work at the Municipal Sewing club at the public library each Saturday. They are: Miss Gladys Mitchell, Miss Wade Rettinger, Miss Elizabeth Hoover, Miss Millie Hall and Miss Helen Greer. Miss Hoover is president of the association.

LIKE BOY IN DARK

EASTERN COUNTRY WAR CRAZY, SAYS VAN CLEVE.

TALKS OF PREPAREDNESS

Believes Necessary Defects Can Be Remedied Without Bankrupting the Country.

(By W. C. Van Cleve.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—With the president's departure for a "swing around the circle," the presidential campaign for 1916 is in a measure opened. The president has declared that his race for renomination will depend upon the attitude of the people toward him as he understands it, and this trip will be a sort of a feeling out proceeding. It is also educational from the president's standpoint. He has mapped out a program for legislation on national defense or preparedness, and he is determined that it shall be put through at this session of congress. He believes the people inland do not understand the matter and he will attempt to win them to his way of thinking.

The people of this eastern country are war crazy. They see signs all day and dream about goblins and monsters all night. They are like a small boy going through a dark stretch of woodland at night. If he steps on a stick he is ready to break his neck running at the noise he made himself. There are those who believe that if Germany wins in the great international conflict, that Germany will forthwith proceed to attempt to punish the United States for her neutrality and to bring her under the will of the great central empire. There are those who believe that if the allies win there will be no way to avoid a war with England because of commercial disputes and the conflict of international trade. Then there is the ever-recurring spectre of Japan. The ambition of Japan, her military success with Russia, her need of territory to house her increasing millions and the friction that arises between the white and yellow men on the Pacific coast make it perfectly clear to some minds that eventual war with Japan is a foregone conclusion.

To the mind of the writer, the natural conclusion is that we will be more secure from war with Europe when this war has closed than we have been for fifty years, provided we keep out of it until it ends. It is true the various countries will be on an excellent war footing and will have seasoned armies and navies organized and equipped beyond anything the world has ever known. But it is also true that they will be out of money and under debts that will stagger the world. The producing millions will be mortgaged under excessive taxes for generations to come. Their vigorous manhood will be depleted and the remnants that are left will be needed in the worshops and the factories to rehabilitate the demoralized and lost commerce and to restore the vanished government revenues. Under such conditions will the people of those countries be willing to forsake the relief that comes with peace and go again to war? Not unless it is unavoidable, and the United States is not going to force an unjust war on any country.

Some preparedness against eventualities is necessary of course. But this country wants defense and not offense. It wants preparedness against war, but not preparedness for war. We prefer to set an example for civilization rather than for brutality and butchery. We want to exercise our talents, our ingenuity and our constructive ability in the development of things that make for the comfort, convenience and happiness of men rather than for their destruction. But, in order to be unmolested in this work, it is necessary to enjoy protection from those who still believe that might makes right and that power confers privilege.

How to do that and where to stop is the great question now before the country. Our coast defences are weak. That much is admitted. We have some as fine as there is in the world, but we have a vast mileage in coast line. The guns that were ample a few years ago are insignificant in the light of recent developments. There has been some dispute as to whether our navy was second or third at the beginning of the war. However that may be, the navies of the old world have been strengthened by the war and our rank has been dropped to third or fourth. The navies of England, Germany and France have been strengthened by increase without much loss during the war up to this time. There have been no great naval engagements and no great loss of big ships. But the developments of this war have tended to throw some question around the efficiency of the big dreadnaught. The big battleship as an engine of destruction has been distanced by the little vessels that are able to strike quickly and get away. A whole fleet of submarines and torpedo boats may be constructed for the cost of one battleship.

These facts being admitted, it would seem to be a policy of good sense to fortify our coast lines and the exposed cities in the most ample and approved manner known to military science. Make them as nearly impregnable as possible and put guns on them that will make it dangerous for an enemy to come within twenty miles. The lesson of Gallipoli is worth while. Then strengthen and amplify the navy with such submarines, torpedo boats, fast cruisers and those vessels in which it is weak and leave the battleship matter to the maximum of two a year, as we have been doing for several years. This will accumulate more battleships than we can use by the time we need them. This program will furnish sufficient protection with comparative small cost.

If we are prepared to prevent the landing of foreign troops on our shores, we have no need for a big army. A big army is obnoxious to the spirit of the founders of this government, and it is obnoxious to democracy. It creates a tremendous burden upon the people to maintain a great body of men in idleness, and it withdraws just that many able bodied men from the industrial life of the country. This alone is responsible for the slow progress of some of the older countries. Their substance and their genius have gone into their great standing armies.

With a sufficient number of men trained for officers, it is admitted that soldiers can be wrought out of raw material in a few months. Then, increase the standing army only to actual demands in peace times. Provide for more officers without the reckless cost that has been attached to the system in this country and pass a law that will give aid and strength to the National Guard and make it sufficiently responsive to the needs of the nation. Make what army we have in reserve a democratic army, as they have in Switzerland. Supply plenty of aeroplanes for scout duty in the air, and when all this is done we will have abundant protection without bankrupting the treasury.

A great hurrah is made about our shortage in war munitions. In case we need them, the factories that are supplying half of Europe now may be compelled to turn their energies to the support of their own government, and in a few weeks we would have supplies enough to fight the world. The fact is that some of the more ardent and extreme organizations that are advocating an army and navy of old world proportions are in very close relations with the big producers of war munitions, who want to extend their bountiful harvest beyond the limits of the war now in progress.

Had Done Her Part.

The express was approaching a railway bridge that spanned a deep river, and a stout old lady in one of the compartments showed signs of nervousness. As the train went roaring across the structure she did not speak a word, but seemed to be holding her breath. "There," said a gentleman in a neighboring seat, "we are over it safely." The old lady heaved an explosive sigh. "Well," she said, "if we had gone to the bottom I should have died with a clear conscience, for it wouldn't have been my weight that did it. I bore up so that I really made the train lighter than it would have been without me!" —Pittsburgh Press.

Kansas City Women Opposed To Giving Children Medicine

They Find "External" Treatment Better Than Internal Medicines for Children's Colds.

We give below letters from a number of Kansas City, Mo., ladies who were selected by their druggists to try out Vap-O-Rub—the "outside" treatment for cold troubles, introduced in Kansas City last winter. Vap-O-Rub is the invention of a North Carolina druggist. It comes in salve form, and has a two-fold action—first, the body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors, that are inhaled with each breath—second, Vap-O-Rub is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, aiding the vapors inhaled to relieve the congestion.

Mrs. James Hollens, 1928 Tracy Ave., has used Vick's herself for colds in the chest and asthma, and has also used it on her children, and "finds it excellent."

Mrs. Almira Turner, 1214 E. 24th St., relieved her husband of bronchitis with two nights' applications. She also used on her four months old baby for cold and on the other children, and says—"I find Vap-O-Rub does everything you say."

Mrs. T. L. Marshall, 139 N. Lawndale Ave., has two children, one six years old and one eight months old. The baby last winter had an obstinate cough for quite a while. Mrs. Marshall used Vap-O-Rub and writes—"The cough soon yielded to this treatment after several different cough medicines had been tried with no effect." Mrs. Marshall also writes—"Vap-O-Rub appeals to us because the delicate little stomachs are not being loaded down with medicines containing opium and other harmful ingredients."

Mrs. J. S. Hollis, 3622 Forest Ave., used Vap-O-Rub for "a terrific cold—could not breathe through my nose at all—impossible to go to sleep. Used Vick's Vap-O-Rub and in five minutes was asleep and breathing easily."

Mrs. W. A. Winkler, 6228 E. 15th St., says—"My baby had a cold, almost pneumonia. I used Vap-O-Rub on him as directed, and in one day's time he was better."

Mrs. Anna Taylor, 6040 Walrond Ave., has four children, and says—"I have never used anything as good for coughs and colds as Vap-O-Rub."

Mrs. Harry Webb, 2123 E. 37th St., says—"Our little girl is very susceptible to colds, and in fact this is the only winter and spring that she has escaped pneumonia, and we believe it is Vap-O-Rub that has kept her from a spell this year." Three sizes—25c, 50c and $1.00.

WHY FAMOUS PASTRY COOKS USE KC BAKING POWDER

The patrons of our first class hotels and restaurants are exacting—they demand the best. Women go where the pastry and cakes are noted for their excellence. Men are attracted by hot bread and biscuits—when fresh and moist and light.

The pastry cook with a reputation uses K C Baking Powder because he knows that results are certain; every time everything is as good as his best.

Then, too, with K C Baking Powder he can mix the various kinds of batter before the rush of the meal begins and bake as needed so that every order goes to the table fresh and hot, yet the last he bakes are just as good as the first.

The reasons behind these reasons is that K C is really a blend of two baking powders. One commences to give off leavening gas as soon as moistened. The other requires both moisture and heat to make it active. Dough or batter will remain in a partially leavened condition for hours, and when put in the oven, will come up as light as if mixed a moment before.

For cookies, pancakes, doughnuts and the like, which cannot all be baked at once, K C is indispensable. For all baking the double raise makes doubly certain.

Follow the example of the professional cook and your baking will be equal to his.

Miller Farm Brought $140 an Acre.

The John Miller farm, located five miles west of Burlington Junction, was sold to N. Grimsley Friday by Frank Miller, administrator of the estate. The farm contained 122 acres and Mr. Grimsley paid $140 an acre for it, or $17,080. It is one of the best farms in that part of the country and will make a good addition to Mr. Grimsley's valuable land holdings.—Burlington Junction Post.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

University of Pennsylvania's strong man, Mike Dorizas, will try to lift his strength record a notch or two as soon as he recovers from an injury received in football.

"I did 1,890 in an unofficial trial, and I don't think even this is the best I can do," said Dorizas recently. "I am stronger than I was two years ago, and I know something about the tricks of getting the most out of one's weight.

"My aim is 2,000. That's a pretty high mark, but not only am I stronger, but after some work on the mat I will be better than I have been in the past. This is my last chance at the thing. Some day another fellow will come along and do better."

Soccer Growing In Favor.

The phenomenal and continuous growth of association football is based on the merits of the game. Once the younger element have engaged in it they are bound to it because it permits the strong and the weak, the skilled and the unskilled, the young and the old, to enjoy the many varieties of action and motion without unnecessary danger and risk to life and limb.

New York city, Newark, Philadelphia, Boston, Brockton, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco are some of the prominent cities where the unceasing efforts of public school officials in regard to the furtherance and proper development of the game through well conducted interclass and interschool tournaments have been crowned with great success, and with the constant growth of numbers of players and instructors there is increased playing of the game throughout the country.

Les Darcy Coming to America.

Unless Les Darcy, the Australian middleweight, has changed his mind he is now prepared to go ahead with arrangements for a tour of this country.

Within the last year he has trounced Jeff Smith, Mick King, Billy Murray twice, Jimmy Clabby and stopped Eddie McGoorty twice. These are the headliners whom he has beaten. There were others.

Smith lost to Darcy on a foul and subsequently was blacklisted by Australian promoters. In all of these bouts reports from Australia assert that Darcy showed to excellent advantage. He is but twenty years of age and weighs 158 pounds. He is fast on his feet, a good ring general, is a boxer of considerable ability and "packs" a straight arm punch of power.

Oliphant's Good Record.

Elmer Oliphant, the Army football star, whose work featured the annual game with the Navy, is the first West Point man to win four "A's" in sports, which he has done in football, baseball, track and basketball. He is a boxer of ability and also plays hockey. His early athletic training was got at Purdue university. He has cleared 11½ feet pole vaulting, ran a quarter mile in 51 seconds, a half mile in 2 minutes 2 seconds, a mile in 4 minutes 31 seconds, covered the 220 yard hurdles in 25 seconds and cleared 21 1-3 feet in the broad jump.

Cincinnati's Good Fielding.

If fielding was all there was to baseball the Cincinnati Reds would have finished well up in the race. Mollwitz was the real fielding leader among the first basemen, while Groh led the second basemen for the twenty-nine games he played at that position and was the real leader of the third basemen when he moved over to the far corner. In addition to this, Herzog stood second in fielding among the shortstops, and Killifer, Leach and Griffith in the outfield all had percentages of above .950.

Hans Wagner Leads Shortstops.

"Old Man" Hans Wagner of the Pittsburgh Pirates was good enough this season to outfield all his younger rivals for the shortstop honors of 1915. In the official fielding averages made public Wagner is credited with an average of .948 for 131 games. This average is three points better than that made by Charles Herzog, the scrappy manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNER

"Run, Sheep, Run."

The following game, which is "Run, sheep, run," is an interesting game if played right. It is best played out of doors. Two captains are chosen, who alternately choose players until all the players are divided equally. One side becomes a searching side and remains at the goal, while the other party goes out with its captain, who finds a hiding place.

While all are hidden the captain goes back to the searchers, who at once start out on their hunt under the direction of their captain. The captain of the hiding place remains with the searchers, calling out signals to his hidden men.

Neither party may run for the goal until its own captain shouts, "Run, sheep, run!" The following are the signals: Red, "Danger;" green, "Go around the house to the right;" blue, "Go around the house to the left;" purple, "Stand still;" yellow, "Keep on going in the same direction and go nearer the goal."

How to Play "Rabbit."

A game which can be played at any time and place is as follows:

The leader, who knows the game, asks each one in turn, "Do you know how to play rabbit?" When all have answered she says, "Do just what I do."

First.—All stand in a row.

Second.—All kneel down on one knee.

Third.—All place the first finger of the right hand on the floor.

When all the players are in the position and about losing their balance the leader, who is at the head of the line, pushes against the player next to her, thus knocking over the whole row. As they fall, amid laughter, she calmly announces, "That is the way to play 'rabbit.'"

St. Bernard Dog a Hero.

Brown is a big St. Bernard dog of Boston, famous for his intelligence. It was his habit to go with the nurse when she wheeled the baby out for an airing. There was a high embankment with a steep incline going down at a sharp angle, and on one occasion the nurse, going in to pay a visit to some of her friends, left the carriage, with the baby in it, perilously near the dangerous spot. Something started the wheels in motion, and the carriage rolled down toward the dangerous edge. In a moment more it must have gone over, when Brown threw himself before the wheels and lay there, holding the carriage back by the weight of his body until the truant maid returned.

Approves Scout Movement.

At a banquet in Richmond, Va., a short time ago Bishop Dennis J. O'Connell said of the scout movement:

"I am with and for the Boy Scouts of America. I think the boy scout movement is the best, most natural and most efficient step taken toward the development of character in the American boy that has come under my observation. The principles upon which this movement is founded tend to build up the boy's character. The principles that animate the movement are grand and noble. The boy scout spirit will last longer than the sun."

Scouts Should Keep Healthy.

A scout keeps himself healthy and strong. To be able to live up to the requirements of a scout a boy must be systematically taking exercise, playing games, running and walking. He must sleep enough hours to give him necessary strength and, if possible, sleep much in the open or at least with the windows of his bedroom open both summer and winter. He should take a cold bath often, rubbing dry with a rough towel. He should breathe through the nose and not through the mouth. He should at all times train himself to endure hardships.

"Deerstalking."

"Deerstalking" is a game in which only two players take part, but it is very exciting to watch. Both "deer" and "stalker" are blindfolded. They then are placed at opposite ends of a large table.

At a given moment they begin to move around it. The stalker's business, of course, is to catch the deer, and the deer's to avoid it. But neither must run out of the room. Absolute silence must be kept by the audience and players, and, if felt slippers can be worn by the deer and its stalker, so much the better.

Correct Use of the Ax.

In using an ax a scout should never chop in such a position that the ax will cut him if it slips; never chop through wood on a hard surface; never chop pine or hemlock knots with a sharp ax. If you carry the ax on your shoulder, always have the edge outward from your neck; always muzzle the ax in traveling.

Charade.

My first is medicine, my second is fierce, my third is a long period of time, my whole is an extensive journey.

Answer.—Pill, grim, age—Pilgrimage.

Pet Pussy.

Scat, pussy cat!
Get out of that!
I see you there
High on the chair,
Your paw stretched up
To reach the cup
With milk all filled.
There, now, it's spilled;
I knew 'twould be.
You won't mind me
'Cause I'm so small,
But, after all,
You're a darling cat,
I'm sure of that!

—Philadelphia Record.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL RECOVERY FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE

For nearly nine years I was a great sufferer from what my doctor said was Kidney trouble and my blood was out of order; enduring all that time excruciating pain in my back and across my bowels. I was drawn down so that I could only walk with my hands on my knees. My doctor said he could do nothing for me. I tried many kinds of medicine but all to no avail. A friend told me about Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and as I had tried everything else that I heard of, I bought a bottle of Swamp-Root, and it did wonders for me. I prize it higher than any other medicine and I shall recommend it to my friends. I wish to add right here that after using Swamp-Root for two months I began to straighten up and am now sound and well, and feel like I might live a long time yet to tell what your medicine has done for me.

Yours very truly,

BOB INGERSOLL ON BOOZE

FAMOUS ORATOR IN ADDRESS TO JURY.

Arraignment of Alcohol by Noted Infidel Famous for Bitterness.

The following talk was made by Robert Ingersoll on alcohol in a speech to a jury in a liquor case: "I am aware that there is a prejudice against any man who manufactures alcohol. I believe that from the time tugging at the fade and withered worms in the distillery until it empties into the jaws of death, dishonor and crime, it demoralizes everybody that touches it, from its source to where it ends.

I do not believe anybody can contemplate the object without being prejudiced against the liquor crime. All we have to do, gentlemen, is to think of the wrecks on either bank of the stream—of deaths, of the suicides, of the insanity, of the ignorance, of the destitution, of the little children, and when you think of the jails, of the breasts of weeping and despairing mothers, of wives asking for bread, of the men of genius it has wrecked, the men struggling with imaginary serpents—produced by this devilish thing—almhouses, of the asylums, of the prisons, of the scaffolds, upon either bank, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this damned stuff called alcohol.

Intemperance cuts down youth in its vigor, manhood in its strength, old age in its weakness. It breaks the father's heart, bereaves the doting mother, extinguishes natural affection, erases conjugal love, blots out filial attachments, blights parental hopes, brings down mourning age in sorrow to the grave.

It produces weakness, not life. It makes wives widows, children orphans, fathers friends and all of them paupers and invites cholera, imports pestilence and embraces consumption. It covers the land with idleness, misery, crime. It fills your jails, supplies your almshouses and demands your asylums. It endangers controversies, fosters quarrels and cherishes riots. It crowds your penitentiaries and furnishes victims for your scaffold.

It is the life blood of the gambler, the element of the burglar, the prop of the highwaymen, and support of the midnight incendiary. It countenances the liar, respects the thief, esteems the blasphemer. It violates obligation, reverences fraud and honors infamy.

It defames benevolence, hates love, scorns virtue and slanders innocence. It incites the father to butcher his helpless off-spring, helps the husband to massacre his wife, and the child to grind the parricidal ax. It burns up men, consumes women, detests life, curses God, despises Heaven, defiles the jury box and stains judicial ermine.

It degrades the citizen, debases the legislator, dishonors the statesman and disarms the patriot. It brings shame, not honor; misery, not happiness, and with the malevolence of a fiend, it calmly surveys its frightful desolation and unsatiated havoc. It poisons felicity, kills peace, ruins morals, blights confidence, slays reputations and wipes out national honor then curses the world and laughs at its ruin.

"Greatness" on the Film.

It is never wise to predict that the miraculous will not occur. There may come a time when careful critics will award to some movie players the treasured adjective "great." But at the present time certainly any such use of the adjective would be absurd. The movie drama has not yet shown itself capable nor given the slightest indication that it ever can show itself capable of affording an actor the chance to do great work.—Walter Prichard Eaton in American Magazine.

The Earliest Maps.

It was among the Egyptians that the first maps appeared. They were wooden tablets on which land and sea, roads and rivers, were fairly accurately outlined. The evidence of such maps is not only furnished in the old Egyptian papyrus rolls, but some of the actual maps have been discovered. It was once contended that the Greeks were the inventors of the art of cartography, but it has been proved that the Egyptians and Babylonians antedated them in this respect some 2,000 years or more.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Maude Van O'Linda Golding died January 10 at her home, near Maryville. A short service was held at the home at 9 o'clock the morning of January 12, conducted by the Rev. W. M. Case of Maryville. Immediately after the remains were conveyed to Bedford, Ia., her girlhood home. Funeral services were held from the Moser home at 11 o'clock the following day, conducted by the Rev. John A. Currie of the Presbyterian church, of which the deceased was a member. Interment was made in Fairview cemetery, in the family lot of the Van O'Lindas, beside her father and mother.

Mrs. Golding received her education in the Bedford high school. After leaving school she taught in the rural schools of Taylor county.

October 9, 1901, she was united in marriage to William Merritt Golding, and for a few years after their marriage they resided near Hatfield, Mo., coming to Maryville about seven years ago, where they lived for a time, moving from town to a farm seven miles west of the city, where they have since lived.
